THE GAME WON BY BOSTON

Sowders and the Visitors' Good Fielding Too Much for the Home Players.

The Hoosiers Fail to Hit the Young Pitcher Successfully-Washington Defeats Pittsburg by a Decisive Score-Other Games.

Sowders, Boston's young man from Indiana, made his first appearance as a League pitcher in this city yesterday, and did pretty nearly as he pleased with the home batsmen, and as a consequence the latter were defeated. Shreve also pitched what would ordinarly have been a winning game, but the weak hitting of Indianapolis made it virtually impossible for them to win. A good crowd was present, as there usually is just after the home players have won game. The number spectators was about 2,200. They conducted themselves in a much more becoming manner than on the previous days, although there was a still more or less noisy element on the bleaching-board seats. The latter paid most of their attention to Kelly, who kept up a running fire of conversation out in right field, and Umpire Decker was, for once, allowed to do his work in peace. Each team objected once or twice to his decisions, but he was about right in every case.

While the game was one of light batting it abounded in good fielding. McGeachy did some splendid work in right field, making a good catch, a good stop and throwing a man out at second in splendid style. Glasscock also distinguished himself, having plenty of chances, and getting all of them, except the first one. Denny's one-handed stop of Nash's drive in the eighth was one of the best plays in the game, while Esterbrook did even better work than on the previous day -some of his catches being very difficult. For the visitors Johnston got an opportunity what he was capable of for the first time in the series, and his running chances contributed materially to the success of his side, while his batting was also good. The Boston infield also played perfectly, as it did on the two previous days, with the exception of Wise's errors in the first game. In this regard the home team is batting in hard luck, as the Boston infield has been overplaying itself here. Not only has its work been accurate, but it has at times been brilliant. Young O'Rourke, who is a friend of Manager Spence, of the Indianapolis team, caught for the visitors and threw out three runners at second base, besides doing excellent back-stop work. Three or four years ago Mr. Spence was passing by a commons in New York City where amateurs were playing, and he was immediately attracted by the playthe catcher of one of the He inquired the young man's name and found out when he was to play again. On that day he came and watched him handle another pitcher, and after the game asked him how he would like to go with him (Spence) to his club in the International League. O'Rourke, that was the player, said he would be glad to go, and in a short time he was making a good reputation, which finally resulted in his purchase by Boston.

Boston obtained the lead early in the game and never relinguished it, although the advantage was so slight as to keep the attention of the spectators. After the home club had been easily retired in the first inning Kelly struck out, much to the delight of the crowd, but Wise dampened the enthusiasm by knocking the ball over the right field fence for a home run. Nach followed with a fine liner to the right field fence. McG eachy threw him out to second in fine style.

In the third, after one out, Buckley got a base on balls, and was forced at second by Shreve. The latter stole second in nice style, but was left by Hines, who flew out to left. The Bostons made two runs in this inning before a man was out. Sowders started matters by reaching first base on Bassett's failure to stop his grounder, and scored on Kelly's home run over the left-field fence. Wise followed with a single over second, but was doubled up by Nash's grounder to Glasscock.

Glasscock made the first hit off of Sowders in the fourth inning, it being a nice drive over second base. Denny followed with a two-bagger over Kelly's head, but Seery struck out, Bassett's sacrifice sent Glasscock in, and Denny was left on third by Estereasy grounder to short. This was the best opportunity the home team had to win during the game, except in the eighth inn-

Johnston began the last half of the fourth inn-ing with a two-bagger down the left foul line, went to third on Burdock's sacrifice, but was caught between third and home on O'Rourke's grounder to Bassett, and run down. Sowders sent a long fly to right which McGeachy caught on the run, leaving O'Rourke on second. The latter hit the ball at a lively rate every time he went to the bat, showing good judgment in

After McGeachy had been retired in the fifth by Johnson's fine catch, Buckley made a threebagger, but neither Shreve nor Hines could bring him in. When the latter was at the bat a dispute arose as to the number of balls called on im, and Decker appealed to official scorer Johnson to settle the matter, which led Kelly to observe, with the proper Boston accent, "Them's robbers, up there."

After Hornung had sent a long fly to Seery in the sixth Johnson sent a safe drive into right enter. McGeachy made a splendid stop or the hit would have yielded the batter two or three bases. He, however, stole second, went to third on a passed ball and scored on Burdock's

Esterbrook got in a hit after one out in the eventh, but was thrown out at second base. The last half of this inning was noticeable for a fine play by Glasscock and Denny. Kelly sent a hard drive which Glasscock did well to stop, but the ball rolled a short distance away, and had not Denny been on band the play could not have been completed, but he threw the runner

Buckley again had to set the ball going. He opened the eighth with a two-bagger, and took third on a passed ball, and scored on a sacrifice. The home team had a good chance to bat out victory here, but the good hitters were not equal to the emergency. Nothing was done in the ninth. The score was:

DETROIT, Mich., May 22 -Richardson's fumble and White's muff of a foul fly in the fourth inning gave the visitors two runs and the game. Although Getzein struck out eight of the Giants, Titcomb did decidedly the better work, the champions being unable to hit the ball at critical points. Daniels's umpiring disgusted both teams and the spectators. The score:

PHILDELPHIA, 4; CHICAGO, 2. CHICAGO, May 22.—Unsteady fielding in the first two innings of to-day's game gave the Philadelphias four unearned runs and the Chicagos two. After that, both teams settled down and played magnificently to the end. Buffinton pitched a great game. Several times the Chicages had enough men on bases to have won the game with a single good his to bring them in, but Buffinton, in each case, prevented the his being made. Burns's brilliant fielding at third, the out-fielding of Sullivan, Wood and Andrews, and the batting of Wood and Clements, were the marked features of the contest. Delehanty played his first game for Philadelphia, and did

WASHINGTON, 6; PITTSBURG, 3. PITTSBURG, Pa., May 22.-There was a good audience witnessed the victory of the Washingtons over the local team to-day, and it was a great disappointment to the spectators, who expected to see Morris hold them down as he did on Saturday. The Washington men played good ball, fielding sharply, and batting and running bases in great style, Irwin's steal to third winning rounds of applause. The game was won in the third inning, when, by a base on balls and a a base on errors, followed by three hits, four men scored. Some very close decisions were made, and the game, as a result, proved tire-some to the spectators before it closed. Catches and throws by Coleman, Dalrymple and Shock were the features of the game. BALTIMORE, May 22.—Inability to hit the ball and an error by Burns gave St. Louis the third successive victory to-day. Cunningham was not hit hard, but was wild, while Knouff pitched in good form, and was [admirably supported. The home team seemed timid, and their play lacked vim, while the visitors played with spirit and ran bases in the most daring manner.

The Indianapolis team plays its last home game to-day until June 25. Inasmuch as the players leave for Pittsburg at 5 P. M., the game will be called at 3 o'clock. This will barely give them time to finish the game, and they will probably drive to the depot in their uniforms and dress in the sleepers. Manager Spence is determined to end even with the Bostons and accordingly will put in Boyle to pitch. Radbourne will probably pitch for the visitors, with Kelly behind the bat. The management is anticipating the largest attendance of the season to day.

Base-Ball Notes. At last the Chicagos seem to have found their match, and people here would rather it were the Philadelphias than any other team save in-

The following, from the Ohio State Journal, shows how the umpires are treated in the Tri-State League: "The umpires' assignments will be found elsewhere in this column. They will remain at their respective posts for six games unless killed sooner."

St. Louis Sporting News: When it comes to deeds of charity, the professional base-ball players are never behind. Although the grass is not yet green over the grave that holds all that is left of poor Charley Ferguson, his widow has already been well provided for. In this connection it is not been the provided for the state of th tion it is but fair to say that Mr. Reach and the Philadelphia club did more than well in contributing to the fund in aid of Ferguson's widow.

Billy Sowders is a pitcher in action, and looks a pitcher in every regard but in size. He stands about five feet six inches high, and does not weigh much over 130 pounds. He is slight, dark and very modest. When he smiles he shows a row of white teeth, which are his most distinguishing characteristic. When asked about himself he had nothing whatever to say, only inti-mating that he enjoyed a little luck. It seems that the Omaha Association is having a hard time to keep some of its players.

Other cities are after them red hot. Boston wants Miller, the short stop, very bad. First she offered $1,000 flat for him and it was refused. Then she offered $2,000, and that was also refused. Yesterday a telegram came saying: "Put your price on Miller and see whether we will give it." The reply sent back was to the effect that he was not for sale and can't be had at any price.

Fine Racing at Louisville.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 22.—Good weather, a fast track, excellent racing and a fair attendance characterized the eighth day of the Louisville spring meeting. Persimmons and Roi D'Or were the only two favorites first under the wire. In the other events the winners, Winslow and Meta, were the second choices. Tenpenny, who captured the Kentucky Oaks, was a 25 to 1 shot. Hypocrite and Los Angeles were heavily backed and regarded as sure of the places in this race, and Tenpenny's easy victory by five or six lengths was a great surprise. The meeting closes on Thursday, when the great Kentucky handicap, in which Gallifet, Terra Cotta, Teliedoe and Egmont will contest.
First Race—The Louisville Hotel handicap;

sweepstakes for all ages; $75 to second, $25 to third; $400 added; one mile. Insolence led away, after three or four breakaways, Persimmons second, Glenball third, and Marshall Luke fourth. It was about the same at the quarter and up the back stretch to the half, where Glenhall was first and Insolence second, Persimmons and Marshall Luke lapping. Glenhall led at the three-quarters. Coming down the stretch it was a very hot pace, with Persimmons leading lightly, Insolence second and Glenhall third. Persimmons won by a length; Insolence second, Glenhall third. Time, 1:42.

Second Race—The Kentucky Oaks, for three-year olds; $1,250 added; $250 to second, $100 to third; one mile and a half. Hypocrite led out. Passing the stand Hypocrite was first, Los Angeles second, under a strong pull, Elmira third, Quindora Belle and Tenpenny last. It was the same at the quarter. Up the back stretch McCarty moved Tenpenny out, leading at the half and around the turn by two lengths. This opening was increased coming down the stretch, the 25 to 1 shot winning by five lengths; Los Angeles second, Quindora Bell third. Time, 2:42.

Third Race—Selling purse, for all ages; seven furlongs. John Gray secured the best of the start. At the half Parrich was first, Winslow second, Elgin third, McMurty fourth. At the three-quarters was the same. In the stretch Winslow led, the others whipping. Winslow won by a neck, Elgin obtaining second by a big spurt; Parrish third. Time, 1:30½.

Fourth Race—Selling; purse, $400; $75 to second, $25 to third; for two-year-old maidens; five furlongs. Meta won handily by a length; Minnie Palmer second, a head in front of Allahere.

Fifth Race—Selling purse, for three-year-olds and upwards; six furlongs. Roi D'Or won very easily by a length and a half; Golightly second,

Full Sail third. Time, 1:174. DAILY WEATHER BULLETIN.

THE FIFTIETH CONGRESS.

The Senate Passes the Bill to Establish a Department of Labor.

WASHINGTON, May 22. -At the conclusion of the morning business the following bills were taken-from the calendar and passed: Senate bill appropriating $75,000 for a public building in Zanesville, O.; Senate bill granting to the Milwaukee, Lake Shore & Western Railway Company the right of way through the Lac de Flambeau Indian reservation in Wisconsin. The Senate then proceeded to consideration of executive business.

The doors were re-opened at 2 o'clock, when the Senate proceeded to consideration of the unfinished business, being the House bill to establish a Department of Labor, and Mr. Reagan addressed the Senate in opposition. His speech was brief, and at its conclusion he moved as a substitute a bill creating a department of industry. On a vote by yeas and nays on the substi-tute there were nine yeas and twenty-seven nays, less than a quorum, and then Mr. Reagan withdrew the substitute.

Various amendments to the bill, principally corrections in phraseology, were offered by Mr. Edmunds and agreed to.

The bill was then passed, a conference committee ordered, and Senators Blair, Wilson of Iowa and George were appointed conferees on the part of the Senate. The bill provides for a Department of Labor, the general design and duties of which shall be to acquire and diffuse among the people of the United States useful information on subjects connected with labor in the most general and comprehensive sense of that word, and especially upon its relation to capital, the hours of labor, the earnings of laboring men and women, and the means of promoting their material, so-cial, intellectual and moral prosperity. The personnel is to consist of a commissioner, to be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, who is to hold office for four years and receive a salary of $5,000; a chief clerk, stenographer, various minor clerks, copyists and messengers.

A message from the President, returning, without his approval, the Senate bill for the relief of L. J. Warden, was laid befor the Senate. The bill directs the allowance of $625 to Mr. Warden, recently postmaster at Lawrence, Kan., for extra clerk hire from July 1, 1882, to June 3, 1883. The grounds of the veto are that allowances to postmasters for clerk hire are fixed by the Postoffice Depertment; that in this case $3,-100 was allowed; that applications for additional allowances were twice declined; that the ex-penses were, therefore, incurred at the postmaster's own risk; and that the passage of special acts in such cases would have a dangerous tendency to encourage postmasters to substitute their own judgment for that of the de-partment and to relax wholesome decipline. The President adds that the time allowed by the Constitution for the approval of bills expired in this case on the 19th inst; that the Senate adjourned from May 17 till May 21; that the message was drawn and engrossed on the 18th; that on the 19th, the message and bill were tendered to the Secretary of the Senate, who declined to receive them; that they were then tendered to the President of the Senate, who also declined to receive them on the ground that they could only be presented to the Senate in actual session; and that they were, therefore, transmitted as soon as the Senate convened—yesterday—with this explanation.

Mr. Hoar remarked that the communication raised a very important constitutional question, to which the Senate should give its careful con-sideration. He therefore moved its reference to the committee on privileges and elections. Agreed to.

A committee of conference was ordered on the pension appropriation bill, and Senators Allison, Dawes and Gorman were appointed. The bill to authorize the construction of a railroad bridge at Fort Smith, Ark., was reported and placed on the calendar. Mr. Frye offered a resolution, which was agreed to, calling on the Secretary of War for a report as to the probable cost of a break-water in the bay of Santa Monica, Cal., so as to secure a depth of nine fathoms. The following bills were taken from the calen-

The Senate bill authorizing the construction of a railroad bridge across the Missouri river at Nebraska City, Neb.; the Senate bill granting Valley Railroad Company through the Yankton Washington Territory; the Senate bill appropriating $12,000 for completion of the public building at Peoria, Ill.; the House bill to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Tennessee river at Knoxville, Tenn., with amendments; the Senate bill to authorize the construction of bridges across the Kentucky river and its tributaries by the Louisville, Cincinnati & Virginia Railroad Company; the Senate bill for relief of various tradesmen and others in Portland, Ore., for labor done and material supplied for the revenue cutter Thomas Corwin, in 1875-76; the Senate bill increasing the appropriation for a public building at Winona, Minn., to $150,000; the Senate bill to amend the law making an annual appropriation to provide arms and equipments for the militia (increasing the amount to $600,000); the Senate bill appropriating $100,000 for a public building at Vicksburg, Miss.; the House bill authorizing the purchase of additional ground for the public building in Council Bluffs, Ia.

The Senate then adjourned.

Discussing Convict Labor. WASHINGTON, May 22 -The floor was accorded to the committee on labor, and Mr. O'Neil, of Missouri, chairman of that committee.

made on the ground that the principle involved in the bill was too important to be established without full discussion and consideration. The majority and minority reports were read at length, and an hour was thus consumed.

Mr. O'Neil explained that the measure originated in a visit to this city of manufacturers from New York, Brooklyn, Jersey City, Philadelphia and other cities, who appeared before the committee and pictured the absolute ruin that stared them in the face from the competition of convict labor. One industry after another was attacked by this convict-labor system; and in each case the industry was obliged to lower the rates of wages or go out of business. Men who were paying $2 and $2.50 a day to their employes. found themselves face to face with competitors who paid only 5 cents an hour. The labor organizations of the country, through their representatives, had urged upon the committee the necessity for the passage of the bill. The tariff bill sank into insignificance when it was realized that there was a cancer at home eating the heart out of every trade and industry.

Mr. Plumb, of Illinois, a member of the labor committee, opposed the bill, on the ground that it was unconstitutional and interfered with interstate commerce. He said that the committee had not properly investigated the subject before acting upon the bill; that it had not availed itself of the opinions and experience of experts, but had based its action upon petitions signed by manufacturers who, in many cases, sold in this country the products of English prisons. He held that prison labor was necessary to the reformation of convicts, as it prepared them to re-enter society equipped with useful trades.

Mr. Rogers, of Arkansas, addressed himself to the constitutional principles involved in the measure, and argued that Congress had not the power to lay an embargo and pass a law which provided for non-intercourse between the States of the Union.

Mr. Butterworth, of Obio, said that this was not the first time when the name of labor was outraged upon this floor. A pebble that was dropped into the ocean disturbed every atom of water in the ocean, and in the same way, a dis-turbance in the ranks of labor anywhere dis-turbed every portion of society from the highest to the lowest. The highest interest of the House was to promote the well-being of all; and the man who intimated that anyone on this floor was unfriendly to labor was a dunce, a knave, or an unabridged ass. The main backers of this bill were not the laboring men. This was the first time he had ever known monopoly to join hands with labor in order to make the criminals of the country gentlemen of elegant leisure. Some gentlemen seemed to feel sympathy for criminals. He felt a little anxious about the men who bore the burden of caring for and supporting those criminals.

Mr. O'Neil inquired what labor the gentleman sought in his tariff speech.

Mr. Butterworth replied that he was trying to protect American labor against foreign labor.

He was not attempting to tax labor at home in order to support labor on the other side in idle-Mr. O'Neil inquired which the gentlemen pre-ferred to remain idle—the honest working man or the felon!

Mr. Butterworth remarked that the gentleman spoke with all the confidence of knowledge and all the assurance of ignorance. The trouble with the gentlemen was that he assumed his Mr. O'Neil asserted that he assumed what he knew, and that was that the workingmen were

Mr. Brumm, of Pennsylvania, said the gentleman was entirely mistaken.

Mr. Butterworth denied that he was mistaken. The greatest punishment that could be inflicted upon honest men was to tax them to support the criminals who had robbed them. Mr. Wilson, of Minnesota, argued against the bill on constitutional grounds. called up the bill to confine the sale of the products of convict labor to the State in which they are produced.

Mr. O'Neil endeavored to have an arrangement effected whereby debate on the bill should be limited to two hours, but opposition was bor, and that the passage of the bill would work a great hardship. Mr. Adams also called attention to the fact that convicts in the Missouri penitentiary were large producers of saddle-trees, most of which were sold in Mexico. The passage of this bill would prohibit that exporta-

Mr. Cannon, of Illinois, was unwilling that the bill should be passed unless there was a provision incorporated in it prohibiting the importation of foreign goods manufactured in whole or in part by convict labor.

Mr. Outhwaite, of Ohio, was opposed to Congress interfering with the domestic affairs of the States when these States were engaged in trying to solve the problem as to how they should deal with their convicts. Mr. Butterworth, of Ohio, urged Mr. O'Neil to postpone the consideration of the bill to another fixed date, in order to afford opportunity for mature consideration and the correction of Mr. Reed seconded the request, and Mr. O'Neil asked consent to postpone the bill till next Saturday, but objection was made, and Mr. Lodge, of Massachusetts, addressed the House in support of the bill. Mr. Caruth, of Kentucky, held that the courts should be allowed to decide the point of unconstitutionality raised against the bill. It was the duty of the people's representatives to pro-tect their people against the competition of con-

Mr. Cannon, of Illinois, offered an amendment prohibiting the importation, for commercial purposes, of all goods, wares or merchandise from any foreign country to the United States which, in whole or in part, were manufactured or produced by convict labor, and prescribing penalties for the violation of this prohibition.

The previous question was then ordered-year 185, nays 44—on engrossment and third reading of the bill, and the House adjourned.

A Rat His Only Friend. ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 22 -The keepers of Edward Deacons, the condemned murderer of Mrs. Ada Stone, yesterday saw him shed the first tears that have been seen in his eyes, and they were all for the death of a rat. A month ago Deacons saw a rat in the corner of his cell. He threw a morsel of food in the corner. The next day the rat came again and was fed. At last he tamed the animal, and it began to feed out of his hand. Deacons was elated by his success, and most of his time when awake has been spent in teaching his pet tricks of different kinds, and for the past week it has remained almost constantly in his cell. The prisoner taught it to walk a piece of string tied tightly from one side of his cell to the other. It also drew a toy cart, and Deacons was trying yesterday to catch another rat, and, as he said, "have a span." This forenoon Deacons's keeper entered the corridor where the cell of the condemned man is. The door was open, and a dog which ac-companied him sprang past the prisoner and in a second shook the life out of the rat. Deacons looked at the dog a moment, and, sitting down on his bedstead, cried like a child. During his entire trial and when sentenced he never manifested a particle of emotion.

Patriotism in Public Schools. New York, May 24.—Mayor Hewitt's flag crusade is beginning to affect the public schools, and a number of them, between new and the start of summer vacation, are going to have great fun in unfurling the stars and stripes over their buildings or in their assembly-rooms. The teachers are enthusiastic advocates of the idea that the continual display of the national flag before the scholars will have an elevating influence, and they welcome heartily the presentation of flags to the schools.

79 to 85 South Peunsylvania St., INDIANAPOLIS SHE WAS NOT JOSIE MANSFIELD.

(Successors to Machine and Bolt Works),

And the Supposition that She Was Was Based on Country Gossip. New York World. A special dispatch, under date of Beverly, N. J., was printed yesterday morning to the effect that Josie Mansfield had died in the village of Delanco, while living there under an assumed name. The dispatch said: "When Josie Mansfield returned from Paris she selected an unpretentious little home in the town of Delanco, where she has since led a very quiet and seelud-ed life. Her death and burial are surrounded with the most incomprehensible mystery. The burial permit and physician's certificate of death are registered as 'Josie Williams.' There were only four or five persons at the funeral, and from all that can be learned they are unknown in this part of the State. The sexton was generously paid, but he was enjoined to observe the utmost secrecy." A World reporter visited the village of Delanco yesterday and found that not only was the dead woman not Josie Mansfield, but that all the facts in the case were greatly exaggerated. The dead woman's name was Sarah Williams, and at the time of her death she was the wife of Chas. H. Williams. She was married to Williams sixteen years ago, which was previous to Josie Mansfield's trip to Paris. The burial certificate was made out in the name of "Sarah." not "Josie" Williams. There was no secrecy about the death and funeral at all. Rev. V. A. Longher, pastor of the Methodist Church at Delanco, officiated at the funeral services, which were public. She was buried at Beverly for the reason that she had purchased a lot in the cemetary there five years ago in which her father and mother were buried. Mrs. Williams's maiden name was Sarah Hines, and Delanco had been their home since 1855. She married a man named Collom, by whom she had a son, Andrew, who is nearly forty years old. She was divorced from Collom and married Williams. Mrs. Williams has not been living a secluded life in Delanco. Her home has been in New York for a number of years, but she paid fre-quent visits to Delanco, where she owned considerable property. The sexton was not enjoined to maintain secrecy, and talked freely of the funeral. At least ten carriages filled with friends of the dead woman came from Delanco. The story of her being Josie Mansfield arose from the fact of her spending so much time in New York, where she had accumulated considerable money. When she visited Delanes she was always richly dressed and wore many diamonds. A village gossip started the story that Mrs. Williams was Josie Mansfield, and the country Mrs. Grundys have kept the idea warm. A resident of Delanco who has known her since she was a child laughed at the story.

A Dreadful Punishment Proposed. Boston Commonwealth.

It is singular that the almost invariable impulse of the country visitor is to pass herself off for a Bostonian. Usually she would prefer to have it understood, even by her escort, that she is quite familiar with the sights and the lions, and is only amusing herself by going over the ground. We recall the comical disappointment of a city resident who, in the midst of a busy life, spared time to show a little country relative about Boston. "I had looked forward to it," he said, in commenting upon the trip. "I thought she would take such a fresh, innocent satisfaction in seeing all the famous landmarks. but I was never more mistaken. Miss Ella was not to be surprised. Not a trace of interest did she manifest, though she was bright and intelli gent, in anything I could show her. She merely looked on in well-bred silence, or made some roarded remark as if she had seen all these things from her birth up. I could have shakes the little minz. She was not to be cons rural. Not if she knew herself!" A wholesome treatment for this kind of foolishness would be to turn the new-comer into our crocked, crowded streets for a little while by herself, and by the time she had pursued her peregrinations unaided for half a crooked mile she would perhaps be ready to admit that she did not feel perfectly
